Edstrom Technologies Releases The Missing Calculator for iPad

A Beautifully Simple and Powerful Calculator Available In the App Store

SPOKANE, Wash. – April 29, 2014 – Edstrom Technologies announced today that The Missing Calculator is available for sale exclusively for the iPad on the Apple App Store. The Missing Calculator is a versatile calculator engineered specifically for the iPad and includes three integrated calculators ideal for various tasks.

The Missing Calculator is a powerful calculator that uses the iPad's large screen in a useful and innovative way. Anybody who owns an iPad can attest to the frustration prompted by the lack of a calculator. The Missing Calculator fills that gap by bringing a clean and modern app unlike any other to the App Store.

"The Missing Calculator is free to download and will always be completely ad-free," said Evan Edstrom, owner of Edstrom Technologies. "It was important for me to craft an app that is not only incredibly functional but beautiful too." Three calculators within the application are built for individual tasks. The standard calculator is a four-function calculator for everyday arithmetic. A scientific calculator is built for scientists, engineers, students, and anybody with the need to use trigonometry, exponential, and logarithmic functions. A programmer's calculator is designed for software engineers, developers, and those who need to do integer math, bitwise operations or bit-manipulation.

The Missing Calculator is available for free by visiting the Apple App Store. The scientific calculator add-on is free for the first 60 days following the app's release and the programmer's calculator is a 99 cent add-on.
